TRAINING

BSS is an international health, safety and environment training and consultancy company, specialising in improving the safety performance and awareness in the workplace.

The risk of having an accident at work can be decreased if companies adopt a safety management programme with individuals participating in the implementation and being competent having undertaken appropriate training.

/ Training Needs Analysis

The variety of health and safety training courses on offer for both employers and employees can seem like a complex maze – what courses do you need, what courses should you take and should the training be accredited?

/ Dedicated Trainers

Students on every course receive constant support and encouragement in informal and relaxed environments. Students are encouraged to ask questions and to be actively involved in every aspect of their learning. This is reflected in the consistently high pass rates students achieve.

/ Ideal Learning Environment

BSS have specialist centres where students can benefit from a comfortable training environment. BSS always respect the maximum and, in some cases, minimum numbers allowable by the various International Accrediting Organisations, so students have time to ask questions and develop their knowledge.

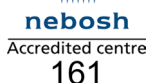

/ Exceptional Pass Rates

Amongst other awards, BSS run NEBOSH National and International General Certificate courses worldwide and clients regularly achieve pass rates exceeding average UK national pass rates, with over 96% of students gaining a pass, of which over 55% are either a distinction or a credit.

/ No Selection Process

BSS are happy to train anyone who wants to undertake a course regardless of their background or previous qualifications and experience as long as the Accrediting Body guidelines are met. This means that the BSS results are real and not massaged by only allowing the best students to sit their courses.
